The Bradley-Martin Ball Discussed.

[Written For THE BOURBON NEWS.]
New York, Feb. 13, 1897.

Despite the dire threats of the anarchists, the denunciations of dyspeptic preachers and the gibes of the press, Mrs. Bradley-Martin gave her $300,000 bal masque Wednesday night at the Waldorf, and it has passed into history as the most splendid social event ever seen in America. The ball was beautiful beyond the most fanciful dream of magnificence, beauty and picturesqueness. Fully eight hundred guests, mostly garbed in costumes of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, were present—nineteenth century clothes being tabooed. More than two hundred pseudo American queens far eclipsed the ancient queens of France and England in beauty, grace, splendid gowns, and crowns and dazzling tiaras. The floral decorations of the ball-room, the parlors, balls and dressing rooms were very elaborate, costing about $6,000. The mirrors and chandeliers were decked with roses, ivy, orchids and smilax, and easy chairs and sofas were made into secluded "flirtation bowers" by the liberal use of flowers while portieres of pink roses also curtained off cozy nooks in the ball room. On each of 125 tables in the dining room was a huge vase of pink roses. The rooms and corridors were as beautiful as a peep into fairyland.

As the guests entered the ball room they handed a card bearing their name and the character they represented, to a herald, who announced it to the assembly. Then the guest proceeded to the dias and paid his or her respects to Mr. and Mrs. Bradley-Martin.

Mr. Martin's costume was fashioned after the time of Louis XI, and was of pink satin, embroidered with gold and trimmed with point lace. He wore a diamond brooch, diamond rings and a jeweled rapier.

Mrs. Bradley-Martin opened the ball by dancing the quadrille d'honneur with John Jacob Astor, who represented Henry of Navarre. Mrs. Martin's costume was Elizabethan in design, and was sapphire-blue velvet, with a long train of black velvet. The skirt was caught up on one side to show and old-rose petticoat trimmed with silver lace. Around her neck she wore a collar of seven rows of diamonds and rubies, together with three ropes of the same jewels, and her head was surmounted by the celebrated tiara.

The minuet began at midnight, led by Worthington Whitehouse and Mrs. Orme Wilson, and was followed by several lancers and quadrilles. At three o'clock Mr. Elisha Dyer, Jr., garbed as Francis I, began to lead the cotillion with Mrs. Martin. Mr. Dyer's costume was of purple velvet gold embroidered, with violet silk fleshings—a most superb costume. The dance was not over until six o'clock. The favors were herald's bugles with silken flags suspended, miniature sedan chairs of gilt, shepherd's crooks, silver match safes, and silver repousse court-plaster cases. The ball cost the Bradley-Martins about $50,000, but the expenses of the guests will swell the total cost to about $300,000.

The costumes of the guests were magnificent and twenty columns would be necessary to describe them. The costumes of Mrs. C. S. Brice and daughter, and Mrs. Fred C. Hardt were among the most splendid noticed, and Mrs. Astor's jewels were the finest ever worn at any social event in any period.

The Bradley-Martins were ambitious to give the most superb fancy dress ball the world has ever seen and most brilliantly did they succeed. Their ball eclipsed the famous Vanderbilt ball and any one ever given in the old world, and was given despite the score of threatening letters, three of them written in blood, received by Mrs. Martin from anarchists.

It is estimated that the cost of the ball was distributed as follows, and the reader may easily see how many deservings people have profited by the ball: Costumes, $250,000; ballroom, $1,000; receiving room $500; supper, buffet, etc. $19,000; decorations $20,000; cotillion, foors, $20,000; music, $1,500; detectives $2,500; carriages; servants, $3,000; invitations, postage, $350; wigmakers, hair dressers, makeup, $3,600; shoemakers, gloves, $16,000; dancing masters $1,000; photographers; $9,250; private dinner parties prior to ball, $7,500; flowers for same, $2,500; ushers and carriage callers, $350. This does not include the earnings of thousands of errand boys and girls, messengers etc., who made a neat sum off the ball. And yet there are people who blame Mrs. Martin for causing all this money to be put in circulation. Rev. Talmage says that the person who cannot see that $90,000 of it went into deservings hands, needs spectacles.

Not a member of the Gould family attended the ball—because they were not invited. Why they were not bidden is not known, but I presume Mrs. Martin did not desire their presence.

Eighty-five policemen in uniform and citizens clothes were stationed around the Waldorf during the ball and prevented a single unpleasant incident to mar the most brilliant social spectacle ever seen in America.

Ministers Should Use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

THERE IS NO PROFESSION, whose labors so severely tax the nervous system, as that of the ministry. The derangement of the nerve centers of the brain by over work, frequently brings on attacks of heart trouble, and nervous prostration. Rev. J. P. Kester, M. D., Pastor U. B. church, London Mills, Ills., himself a physician, writes Feb. 26, 1895: "Heart affection and nervous prostration had become so serious last fall that a little over work in the pulpit would so completely prostrate me that it seemed certain I must relinquish the work of the ministry entirely. Heart palpitation became so bad that my auditors would ask me if I did not have heart disease. Last November I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure alternately with Dr. Miles' Nervine and derived the greatest possible benefit. I have just closed revival work of 10 weeks, preaching nearly every night and twice on the Sabbath. I can speak for hours without suffering as I formerly did. Hard working ministers should keep Dr. Miles' grand remedies on hand."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on guarantee, first bottle will benefit or money refunded.
